The Park Board decided to-day that the emergency for which the milliondollar appropriation for park improvements had been authorized was past, and ordered that all days' work which was to be paid for from that fund msut be stopped on Saturday next, and all work hereafter to be done by contract.

President Clausen offered the resolution to stop day's work, and Commissioner Bell, in his eagerness to oblige Taininany contractors, went even further. He wanted the work stopped tonight, and insisted on his point, but was out-voted.

Commissioner Tappen said some of the walks which were being resurfaced and asphalted were half completed, and to leave them in an uncompleted condition would be dangerous to life and limb. "noard them up, but stop the work to-night," persisted Bell.

Commissioner Clausen then had his resolution adopted. This action is in direct violation of the

That is the latest way of dealing with the knights of the Jimmy, but Mrs. Martells was too scared to think of it. She felt sure that the next moment a fetermined robber would roughly put a chloroform-soaked handkerchief to her nostrils, and that all would be over. There was the rear window on the first floor wide open, and an odor, or a myneterious silence, or something, said "Burglara!" as pla 11, as could be. It was swful, and Mrs. Martells would have screamed if she could have done so. She found her way to the street somehow, and startled Patrolinen Thomas Reynolds and Rudolph Weise, noted burglar experts, by wildly announcing the facts in the case.

It is doubtful if so much interest has ever before been taken in the Derby. There were several causes for this state of affairs. In the first place, many thousands of people were anxious to see the Derby because it is the great event of the turf. In the second place, Ladas was looked upon as being the horse of the year, his previous victories having won him hosts of friends who longed to see once more the primrose and rose hoops, with rose-colored cap (Lord Hosebery's colors), flying to the front of everything else in the field. Finally, there were masses of people who went to Epsom desirous of being present at ine deciding point of the British Premier, He had married the British Premier, He had married the British Premier, He had married the British Premier, but would he will the Derby? To the sporting fraternity the last honor mentioned was greater than the two former ones.

Thus it was that the usual trains at London Bridge and Victoria Statian, run every five minutes, were packed to the utmost with the usual crowd of racegors, augmented by many people who had never before ventured to Ensom, but who went there to-day in order to see "Rosebery win the third event."
